Yelp review from Erin F. of San Diego:

"When you first walk in, you notice that the decor is outdated and kinda kitschy but you have got to appreciate the history here and look at it as old town charm. Mr. Pernicano plays the piano usually the whole time we are there, unless he is up talking to the tables or playing his accordion. After you've been there only once, he's waving at you when you walk through the door. The staff is made up of family and everyone is so nice! They always remember us, chat with us, and we are always smiling. EVERYONE IS SO NICE! We always appreciate the friendly service and the cute atmosphere that is perfect for a low key evening."
